

The Girl I Love

There is a girl that I wanted to love but she lived so very far from me,
And one day sitting there all alone it suddenly occurred to me
I'd better jump up, turn around, take a look at what I'd found
Step back, not be slack, and never let my feelings lack, and so I Grabbed my hat, grabbed the keys, tripped on the cat and skinned my knees

Across the porch, and down the stairs, into the car and then I Turned the key to the engine & the motor began to sing

La, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la.

La, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la.

Now I'm in the city of the girl I love & and look up and what do I see Well right behind me is a policeman that wants to have a word with me
And he says hey lad, makes me sad, to see you going oh so fast
And I say please help me, don't ya see, got to get to my baby
So we hit the gas, man I'm glad, got these cars a going fast
They cleared the roads they blocked the streets; they did not even stop to eat

The cop called the police & the officers began to sing

La, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la.

La, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la.

Now I'm at the home of the girl I love, and look up and what do I see
There is the woman that I've always loved waiting in her doorway for me

So she looks at me in my eye, begins to glow and cracks a smile

I jump out the car, head for the place, trip and fall flat on my face

And I go up the stairs, across the porch, & when we touch we start to scorch

The cops applaud, the neighbors scream, they can't believe what they have seen

They all called somebody & everyone began to sing

La, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la.

La, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la.
